

Oppose the Bush Administration's Attack on Birth Control

The Bush administration is proposing a new regulation that could discourage doctors and health-care companies from providing birth control to women who need it. This proposal deliberately confuses the definitions of contraception and abortion. It's an example of the Bush administration stretching existing federal laws beyond their original intent and further injecting politics into health-care services.

We, the undersigned, support Congress' efforts to get the Bush administration to reconsider further restricting access to contraception.
